well as devout and avangelical. There is a great work to be done here as I cannot fail to see, but the material is at hand with which to do it, and I great the effort demanded as aimply an opportually. I am here in the providence of God and at the summons of the authorities of the Church, and although many pleasant relations have been audered, I have no reason to regret the change. Some things are different, but what a unity the condition of the growing crops generally to be very favorable. For some sections—California principally—the reports have some little tings of "blueness," but, according to the latest telegraphic advices, there is canniderable improvement as compared with the condition ten days or afortaight ago. From all quarters in the States of Minageota, Lowa, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri reports are unanimous in advising an unensually good appearance of the corn and wheat crops and increased progress in seeding. In fact, if for no other reason, farmers appear to be making stremous efforts to overcome any damage that may possibly be done by grasshoppers by increasing the soregge of planting beyond that of any previous year.

While there are indications of short crops of wheat and barley in some sections of California, the prospects for all crops in the neighboring fixtae, Oregon, and in Washington Territory are very favorable, the crops having never looked better at this season of the year, while the acreage devoted to wheat is without precedent in extent.

The reports from Louisiana in regard to the cane crop are more favorable than heretofore, and, from all accounts, the "aerious apprehensions" of failure in certain quarters seem time ago seem to have been made to appear worse on paper been made to appear worse o irculation about the rattoons being bad-y injured are greatly exaggerated. True, ild stubbles have rotted or failed to come up well, but they seldem do, and are never relied upon by good planters. Seed cane was never better than this year, and the stand of plant cane promises to be perfect, so that we see no reason for deperfect, so that we see no reason for de-spondency,—on the contrary, good grounds for hopes of another large sugar crop this year." The wheat crop gener-ally in the South is in a promising con-dition and allows evidence of large yield where planted to any considerable extent. The grasshopper scare seems to have virtually died out in Texas, and nearly all reports are of a satisfactory nature.

First Impressions of Wheeling. We find the following "Wheeling cor-respondence" in the Northern Christian Advocate, published at Syracuse, N. Y. The writer will be recognized as the re cently appointed paster of the Fourth Street M. E. Church in this city. The "impressions" of Dr. George in regard to men and things will be of interest to many of our readers; many of our readers;

My Dear Bro. Warren:—After the snow-covered hills of Onondaga faded from my vision, I saw not the earth again till I gazed on the dry and anowless fields of Northern Ohio. I was awake, however, when we reached Ashtabula, and I inquired of the porter the name of the place. The question had to be repeated before an answer was received, and then it came sepulchrally, "Ashtabula," I suppose the bridge is the safest on the Lake Shore road, but I shuddered as we passed slowly over the fearful golf, and had a feeling of relief, when I knew we were on the other side. We went southeast from Cieveland, through a rich and diversified, larming country, with growing signs of coming Spring. When we entered the valley of the Ohio, the farmers were plowing in the fields, the sheep and cattle were grazing in the valleys and on the hills, and some children came into the gaz with their hand filled with widd on the hills, and some children came into the car with their hands filled with wild Wheeling is a dismal looking place as you approach it from the Ohio side of the river. It appears treeless and com-tortices. A heavy cloud of smoke hangs the river. It appears freeiess and com-fortiess. A heavy cloud of smoke hangs over it, and your only impression is that of a dirty manufacturing town. Some one remarked that it must be a very large city, for it had a river front of from six to eight niles, and extended back as far as one could see. This is literally true, for the hills come close to the river and rise very high. The city therefore is narrow, having its length up and down the river. "The Island," as everybody here calls it, which occupies a large space between the old town and the Ohio bank, is now the Seventh ward of the city, and has many special attractions for a residence.

or a residence. However, when one is coming to a However, when one is coming to strange place to make a home, the people constitute the chief element of interest. This going amongst entire ptrangers is apt to excite a chilly feeling, and to produce at least a temporary home-sickness. We had just passed Alliance, in Ohio, when I said to Mrs. George, "I do not recall the time when I have been in a railway car and discovered no person that I had any knowledge of whatevery but I believe that here we are entire strangers." I had barely uttered the words when I was greefed by Dr. William Hunter, of the Eastern Ohio Conference. It was a delightful visit that we enjoyed for the next few hours. Dr. Hunter was for some time a member of the West Virginal Conference, and was able to give me valuable information. The Dector was editor of the Pitthburgh Carlaian Advocate sixteen years altogether, though not in consecutive terms. He was for a dozen years or more Professor of Hebrew and Biblical Literature in Allegheny College, I fis has, been occupied, know not, how many years, in pastoral labor, and yet he looks as if the rippeness of manhood was only beginning to be realized. What keeps him so fresh is, perhaps, his kind heart and poetic soul. "Joyfully, joyfully," "A home over there," and a number of other popular hymns from his pen. His temperance songs are thrilling the hearts of men all over the land, and especially in this great valley of the Ohio. What a benefactor of men is the originator of a good religions song! And now in the way of personal mention, let me speak a word of Rev. Franklin Ball, who has been translerred from this Conference to the Central New York Concrence. Brother Ball's acquaintance has been to men asource of great satisfaction. He is a genuine man, an carnets Christian and a genuine man, an earnest Christian strange place to make a home, the people constitute the chief element of interest. ing Christian and a lady of fine presence and powers. I bespeak for them both a warm welcome from the ministers and churches of the Central New York Con-childrens of the central New York Conference.

I was received by the good people of the Fourth Street Church in Wheeling with a quiet, thoughtful, unpretending kindness which greatly charmed me.
They met us at the depot with carriages and took us directly to the parsonage, which we found newly painted and papered and put every way in first-class order; and where a company of perhaps a dozen brothers and assers gave us a warm greeting, joined in our repast, which was already prepared, and then with kind wishes left us to rest in our new home. The inour I learn of the new home. The more I learn of the Church the better I am pleased. The congregation is large and the members are mainly intelligent and cultured, as "serious apprehensions" of failure in certain quarters some time ago seem to have been made to appear worse on paper than was really the case. The Sugar Boul says:

"We are sure that reports which are in you hereafter. With congratulations for the time penns and almost for th
